

Ashford is changing

High streets up and down the country are facing challenging times with the increase in online shopping and the need to offer something beyond just a shopping experience. Here in Ashford we know residents want more from their town centre and the good news is there are many changes taking place or in the pipeline.

Our ambition is to build on Ashford's heritage as a market town, one that makes the most of its unique location, international connections and strong community spirit – a modern market town.

But it's not just about words and grand visions – it's about action.
